Question NO 07

Translate the passage.

Recently, a conflict occurred in the book fair in Lahore because instead of paying attention towards the books and literary activities, the focus was on the other multiple stalls where edibles and other goods were being sold and it surpassed ^(left behind) the actual purpose of the book fair. Many participants expressed remorse and they felt that 'Book-fair' has become a food market where the less space and attention has been given to the books, authors and literary dialogues. Due to its excessive focus on the food stalls, a debate has been emerged that whether this function / fair is fulfilling its actual purpose or just preferring the business interests.

Comprehension Passage

(i)

Drought is a period when no rain falls for weeks or a long period of time. It has severe consequences for instance, the streams and rivers get dry due to which cattles die from thirst and crops get ruined.

(ii)

There is this popular saying that, A red sky at night is the shepherd's delight and a red sky in the morning is the shepherd's warning. The writer doesn't endorse this saying because he says that these are right a few times but wrong most of the times. And if these sayings were true then there would have been no need to develop sciences or studies for it.

(iii)

Surely, the weather forecasting is a science through which it is studied. The study of weather forecasting is called meteorology.

(iv)

It is not easy to forecast weather because there are many things that affect the weather. In order to forecast weather each one has to be carefully studied before one can make even a fairly accurate forecast.

(v)

People thought that the moon controlled the weather and that it held a lot of water, especially when as a crescent sickle shaped moon it lay on its back.

Even today there are people who still think that the sight of the moon lying on its back means that the rain is on its way.

And this is how they would forecast weather through the help of moon.

Question no 02 .

Title: Pathways to achieve peace.
"Possibility of peace"

The speaker talks about peace because of the new face of war that is 'Total war', which according to the speaker makes no sense because great powers can maintain large invulnerable nuclear forces while refusing to surrender; where single nuclear weapon contains explosive force whose deadly poison can reach to the far corners of the globe and to generations yet unborn. The billions of dollars are spent today just to acquire weapons for the purpose that there won't be any need to use them. The speaker talks about peace as the necessary rational end of rational man. He realises that the pursuit of peace is not as dramatic as that of war. This is the most important task at the moment i.e. to talk about achieving peace. Many believe that it is useless to talk about world peace until the leaders of these nations adopt responsible attitude, ^{and} play their role. But the speaker believes that they all can help leaders to do that. But firstly, they need to reexamine their attitudes, as individuals and as nations. Every individual should look towards the possibilities of peace by observing their belief towards it because many think it is impossible to achieve. But this is the defeatist belief leading towards the inevitability of war in the view of speaker. He thinks that their problems are man-made so they have to persevere. By defining their goal more clearly they can help others to see that peace is not impracticable, and war is not inevitable, and people need to draw hope from it by moving irresistibly towards it.
