In a state and sometime it is uncontrollable to overcome this conflict. Moreover, weak political institutions is another internal threat due to the weak rule of law is regulating in the country. The weak rule of law is not only increased in crime rate but also increase in corruption that is also weaken the financial institutions system. Therefore, these are the threats that weaken the nation and causes of failure of states.

Political instability is the basic internal threat that starts to weaken the nation.

Non-cooperation in political parties and in-appropriate policy making arises this conflict. The dominance of a single party is raised this conflict. Another thing is the decisions are held on the personal interest instead of national interest.

As we take the recent example of Bangladesh, despite their sustainable economic growth, the political instability issues has raised. The students of the country were raising and fighting their rights and demolishing the government of Sheikh Haseena. Hence, the political instability is a big threat than economy and the other factors.

Economic instability turns the nation onto the way of economic crises.

It can be consider as the second most internal threat of a country. Economic instability is raised due to the mismanagement of resources, and lack of accountability. On other hand, utilization of resources and generation of revenue also the part of it.

As we take the example of North Korea, the lack of management and accountability is weaker their economy. The economic crisis of Sri Lanka were also raised due to their fiscal deficit and lack of foreign reserves led into debt default of Sri Lanka. So, economic sustainability and utilization of resources are the major causes of nations sustainability and instability.

Compress the rights of minorities can break the nation or fail the nation.

History has many examples of this, where the rights of minorities has compressed either the minorities separates the nation or the minorities fails the nation through default of it. The weak policy making and weak rule of law and biased society can cause of it. For instance, the Indo-pak history of subcontinent, where muslims of indo-pak were in
