Judge asked Mr. Thompson if he was seeking compensation for wrongful termination. Plaintiff replied in affirmation and told the judge that in honour he believed that he had been unfairly dismissed. The judge asked further whether he had been let go after eight months. Plaintiff agreed with judge. Judge gave legal reference and told that under the law, employees with less than a year are not eligible for the relief unless there is evidence of discrimination or specific rights violation. Plaintiff told the judge that he felt his rights had been violated. The judge agreed with him but said that without those grounds, he could not grant relief. Then plaintiff asked the judge if there was nothing he could do. The judge replied him that his hands were tied by the law. The plaintiff thanked the judge and said that he understood. The judge dismissed the case.
