

Date: 03.10.24

English Comprehension

Answer Question 1

Human beings fear death because of the stories attached with the pain of a man while he embraced death. Whereas, fear of darkness for children is connected to the stories of non-living creatures or criminals. The primary difference between both is that human beings fear revolve around the absolute truth of life which is death while kids fear superficial creatures which are not part of the absolute practical truth.

Answer Question 2

When a human being perceives death as a form of accountability for the sins he has committed in the world with the belief that he would be held accountable and punished for the sins, it is considered as religious and sacred view of death. In addition, viewing death as a pathway to enter into the other world is part of the sacred view.

Date: _____

Answer Question 3

Monks perceive death with their superstitious beliefs which are mixed with a sense of foolishness. In their books they have described about their process of self-purification under which they experienced severe pain. Based on interpretation, their books present death as a highly painful process and the threshold of pain described is heightened by the physical tortures they inflict upon themselves.

Answer Question 4

Seneca, a Roman philosopher, explains that the perception, rituals, and the situation of death created by man, increases the fear of death.

②

Date: _____

Then death itself would do. As per his view, death in reality is not something to be feared at the level at which it is assumed to be because of worldly attached doctors, self-created by man.

Answer Question 5

The perception about death is worsened when people observe a dying man and the situation around him. The agony of the dying man reflected through sounds, shivering body, pale body, and the emotional scene created at the death bed by his loved ones; worsens the appearance of death than it would actually have been.