QNO: 7 Translation :- 04/10

a controversy emerged

Recently, a conflict aroused during a book-fair because there were many stalls where foodstuffs and non literary goods were selling instead of paying attention on books and literary activities. All these detracted the genuine purpose of the fair. Many participants disappointed and realized that book-fair has become as a foodstuff market where (books) less space and attention was given to the books, authors and dialogues. An argument started that whether this ceremony was fulfilling its literary perspective or only commercial interests were prioritized as more influence was on food stalls instead of enhancing studies and book selling in the fair.
