

Your language is fine, just a little bit of work is required on expressions.

The Nation Rises with Respect for Teachers

However, unfortunately, you haven't understood the topic.

Besides, work on the following things

Thesis statement: The success of nation lies in the respect for teachers. All the developed nations have become progressive by honouring their teachers. The need of the hour is to teach students about respecting their teachers for a successful future.

* Don't start sentences from so because Also and * Work on your punctuation

* Work on your comprehension

* Come up with authentic sources

* You cannot quote Dawn in your writing

2) The progress of nations lies in respect of their teachers

Must attend the tutorial session for further suggestions and flaws

2.1) Developed countries have gotten success by respecting teachers

2.2) People will get more success by honouring teachers in future.

3) Respect for teachers fosters teacher-student interaction

- improves teacher's morale
- enhances learning environment
- increases motivation for students
- helps in improved academic performance

You haven't understood the topic.
You are supposed to explain how nations get success via respecting teachers.

- e) encourages critical thinking
f) develops trust and support
- 3.1) Respect for teachers :- a crucial pillar for positive school culture
- a) contributes to school climate
  - b) increases collaboration
among staff and students

3.2) The other side :- Disrespecting teachers also leads to failure

4) Case study of Finland to be succeeded by respecting teachers

4.1) Pakistan can also follow the same strategy

4.2) Other recommendations

- a) elevating educational standards
- b) fostering innovation in education
- c) strengthening community ties
- d) promoting lifelong learning
- e) reducing inequality

5) Conclusion

You haven't understood the topic.

"The respect for teachers is very fundamental to fostering a successful educational environment, noting that countries that prioritize valuing educators tend to experience better student outcomes and higher levels of academic achievement," according to DAWN newspaper.

Respect for teachers is the first and foremost pillar of a country's success and prosperity. All the developed countries have become prospered by giving honour to their teachers.

This way provides a better interaction among teachers and students and improves the learning skills.

Don't start sentences from but so because Also and in the academic writing

But if people don't give respect to their staff and faculty, they cannot get much success. The need of the hour is to guide and teach students about giving honour to their teachers so that a better future could be planned and will be achieved.

Is this your introduction? If it is so, increase the length of the introduction.

The success and prosperity of every nation lies in the key element, which is honouring the teachers. This is one of the two essential ways to get a successful future. So it <sup>should</sup> must be learnt.

All the developed countries in the world became successful by following the strategy of respecting their teachers. The report of DAWN newspaper emphasizes that developed countries experience greater success in their education systems due to large part to the respect and value placed on teachers. So, it became obvious that the secret of success and prosperity of the developed countries lies in respecting their teachers.

The future aspect of success is also bright due to respecting and honouring the teachers. An article of DAWN newspaper highlights that prioritizing teacher respect fosters high-quality education, which in turn, cultivates a skilled workforce ready to meet challenges for a rapidly changing global economy. Respecting the teachers have positive impacts on society which lead to a successful nations. The respect for teachers fosters teacher-student interactions which contribute to various positive developments.

Among those developments, the first one is that, it improves the teacher's morale. When respect is given to teachers, their confidence level rises up. A study published in the Journal of Educational Psychology indicated that teachers who receive recognition and support are more likely to remain in the profession and demonstrate greater enthusiasm in their teaching. So, it increases morality and confidence of teachers.

The second benefit of teacher-student interaction is that, it enhances learning environment. By receiving respect from teachers, they contribute to a better learning environment. A study published in in the Journal of Educational Psychology found that when teachers feel respected, it significantly enhances the learning environment, leading to the increased student engagement and academic achievement. In this way, a teacher-student bonding increases student's learning skills.

The third advantage of fostering student-teacher interaction is, it increases motivation for students. A research published in the International Journal of Educational Research found that when teachers are respected, they significantly boost student's motivation and engagement in the learning process. Therefore, the teacher-student interaction is essential for keeping students motivated.

The fourth merit of a strong interaction between students and teachers is, it helps in improving student's academic performance.

Findings from the Journal of the Educational psychology confirmed that students who perceive their teachers as respectful are more likely to participate actively, leading to a better academic performance. This evidence highlights the critical impact of respecting teachers on students' success.

The fifth positive impact of student-teacher bonding is, it encourages critical thinking. When students honour their teachers, then teachers also impart their best knowledge to students and help in increasing their critical thinking skills. A report from Assessment and Teaching of 21st Century Skills project highlighted that classrooms characterized by mutual respect are more likely to incorporate the collaborative learning activities, which further enhance students' critical thinking abilities. So, it is necessary for students' thinking skills enhancement. Last but not the least, honouring the teachers develops the trust and support between teachers and the students. A report from National Education Association (NEA) emphasized that respectful teacher-student relationships, create an atmosphere of trust, which fosters intrinsic motivation among students to take ownership of their learning.

The respect for teachers is a crucial pillar for positive school culture. Because it contributes to school climate. A study published in the Journal of School Psychology found that respect for teachers is directly linked to a positive school climate. The study revealed that a respectful atmosphere contributes to greater student satisfaction and engagement, leading to improved attendance and academic performance. So, it influence school climate directly.

Additionally, respect for the teachers increases collaboration among among staff and students. According to a research published in the International Journal of Educational Management found that respecting teachers significantly enhances collaboration between students and teachers. The study revealed that when teachers are felt respected, they are more likely to engage in collaborative teaching practices, which in turn fosters an atmosphere where students feel empowered to participate actively in their learning. So, a strong interaction between students and teachers leads to strong collaboration between them.

But on the other hand, if teachers are not given honour and success, they cannot participate in learning and better academic performance of students. As, there will be no collaboration and engagement among students and teachers, which creates the sense and atmosphere of ~~the~~ mistrust.

Among the developed countries, Finland is often highlighted as providing the most respect to Teachers, contributing significantly to its educational success. In Finland, the Teaching profession is highly valued, with strong societal support and favorable working conditions. Teachers receive ongoing professional development and their input is respected in educational policy discussions. This culture of respect leads to high job satisfaction, and ultimately, excellent student outcomes, making Finland a leading example in global education landscape.

By following the strategy of Finland, Pakistan can also become a global education landscape example. If the teachers are given value and honours, they will definitely contribute to success of students' moral and academic development. And it will ultimately increase the national development.

of Pakistan. As it is said, "investing in education pays the best interest." So, the need of the hour is to plan a best policy regarding the respect of teachers with some other recommendations too.

Among those recommendations, the first one is elevating the educational standards. Respecting teachers encourages higher teaching standards, leading to better educational outcomes. A report from the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards highlighted that higher standards lead to enhanced teacher training and certification process, further solidifying professional status of educators.

The next recommendation is fostering innovation in the education. A study published in the Journal of Educational Change found that when schools encourage innovative teaching practices, teachers feel empowered and valued, which enhances their professional respect.

The third recommendation is strengthening community ties. When communities respect teachers, it fosters collaboration between schools and families, creating a supportive educational ecosystem.

The fourth recommendation is promoting life-long learning. A culture of respect instills a value for education, encouraging the individuals to pursue continuous learning and professional development. According to the study published in the International Journal of Lifelong Education found that when educational institutions prioritize ongoing professional development for teachers, it not only improves teaching practices but also elevates the status of teaching profession.

The last recommendation is reducing inequalities, which significantly enhances respect for teachers and contributes to the overall educational success. A study published in the Journal of Educational Research found that when schools actively work to minimize disparities in resources and opportunities, teachers feel more valued and respected for their roles in fostering equity. So all these recommendations are necessary for the success of the nation by respecting teachers.

To conclude that, the prosperity and progress of a nation lies in the respect element for the teachers because they are the leaders of a country. They play a significant role in the development of a country and strong policies are needed to ensure teacher's respect in a country. As the respect for the teachers is fundamental in fostering a successful environment.