Recently, a controversy erupted at a book fair in Lahore, as numerous stalls selling food drinks, and non literary items overshadowed the focus on books and literary activities, pushing the event's original purpose to the background. Many participants expressed disappointment, feeling that the book fair had largely become a food street, with little space and attention devoted to books authors and literary discussions. The overemphasis on food stalls at the fair sparked a debate on whether the event was serving its literary purpose or merely prioritizing its commercial interests.
