History is abundant with people who started their life in most difficult circumstances; however, later on they were considered among the successful and prominent persons in the world. Success, respect and fame cannot be gained ready-made. Only wealth can be inherited. There is a condition for that, your forefathers must have property, only then you will get wealth. Wealth can buy you anything except happiness. Sometimes, it takes decades for one to earn respect. However, it takes seconds for one to be controversial or lost respect.
