"Work is the chief object
for a brave and intellectual man"

It is as impracticable for a well-educated and brave man to make money the key object of his life - as to make dinner the primary object for him - All healthy people do not make their dinner the main of their lives despite their likeliness - Similarly, they enjoy making money but remember that something is important than money. Thus, work is the first and foremost thing for brave and well-trained men than the money rewarded for it.
