

Money is not important for gentle men. They earn to fulfill their requirements. A number of wise people not only earn money but also enjoy the means of earning. A soldier performs his duty well even though if he does not receive his pay. Simply the duty of clergyman is to deliver a religious sermon. Similarly, doctors, they strive till the end to save the life of the patient without being driven by greed for money. So for all brave men, duty is their first priority.
