The great men never set money as their chief objective. The healthy minded people like their dinner but not as their objective of life. Similarly, the objective of a soldier is to win battles. The clergyman focuses to baptize and preach ~~their~~^{his} religion. Similarly, the object of well educated doctor is to cure patients. A good doctor can lose his fee than killing ~~their~~ his patients to get money. Work is the priority of rightly trained men and money comes later.
