Work: Top-most Priority for intellectual men

Intellectual people do not make money their prime objective in life. They like making money but it is not their sole objective. For instance, a soldier, clergyman ~~and~~ doctor get paid for their services. They like being paid but getting paid is not their goal. Their real goal is to perform their respective services in the best possible way. Similarly, all brave and well-trained people give priority to their work. Though their fee is important to them but not as much as their work.
