

Translation:

History is replete with all those successful people who started their lives full of difficulties. However, later they became part of the most successful and famous people. Success, respect (reverence) and fame can not be attained easily. Only wealth can be attained easily, with the condition, if your ancestors have wealth then you will inherit it. You can buy all mundane things with wealth except happiness. Sometimes, it takes humans centuries to earn respect but a moment to earn defamation and become controversial.
