Topic 2 For Capable Men: Work is above wages

All capable and well-read men make earning money, a second choice in life. They believe that the sensation of earning it is better than the material itself. For instance, a soldier would like to fight well, a clergyman would like to preach well and lastly, a doctor would like to cure the sick to the best of his abilities. All of them, regardless of their pay, would like to excel in their respective fields. No doubt, they believe that their wages are important but they always remain second to their goal.
