Title: Work before money

An educated, honorable and pious person likes money but doesn't have the lust for it. For example, the main goal of a true soldier is to conquer victory in battles and not ~~the~~ <sup>the</sup> pay he gets for it. Similarly, a clergyman's aim of life is to preach religion instead of earning wealth. In the same way, the main motive of a devoted doctor is to save his patients' life rather than getting his fees. In short, for every well trained man his work comes first.
