

Title: Duty comes first.

Like dinner,

Money can not be the prime object of any brave, well educated and intellectual man. Healthy men like dinners but it is not their prime object. Similarly the sensation of winning money is liked more by the healthy minded people rather than making money. For a good soldier winning battles is the sole purpose of his life rather than the pay he gets, so is baptizing and preaching for clergymen. In the same way a doctor's main purpose will be curing rather than charging patients. So, for all the brave and well-trained people, their work comes first always and money the second.
