Translation:

History is full of such people, who started their life in very critical condition but later they became successful and famous in the world. Success, honor and fame are never served to you in plate, money is the only thing which can be served to you in plate, under the condition if your ancestors have property. You can buy worldly things with money but you cannot buy happiness. Sometimes, it took decades for humans to earn respect but only one moment is enough to become controversial and earn humiliation.
