Topic: Duty over money for a wise man.

Precis passage:

Wise and fair people don't make money their chief purpose of life. Rather, ~~they~~ the feeling of winning money and process inspires them. This feeling is better for them instead of money itself. For instance, a soldier wins battles because his main ambition is winning not getting paid. Same is true for Clergyman who aims to serve the religion instead of getting rupees for his work. Similarly, a true and wise doctor ~~do~~^{es} his duty he like to save lives instead of collecting high fees. Hence, duty is the main goal of a wise and purposeful man instead of objectivity of money.
