

A truly educated, intelligent, and courageous person cannot make money their main focus, just as they would not obsess over single meal. A healthy person may enjoy meal but does not make it the sole purpose of their life. Similarly, a healthy-minded person enjoys making money for thrill of success, not just for money itself. A good soldier, clergyman, or doctor always prioritizes their work - whether it be winning fight, preaching, or curing patients - over their pay. Therefore, all valourous and well learned people always rank their duties first and compensation second.

Title :

Great People : Duty First, Pay Second