TALHA SARFRAZ KHAN

OB-59

The sole purpose of life for wise men is to work passionately towards their goal other than making a lot of money. For them, money does not measure victory rather it depends on their achievements. Many examples of such professions exist where sole purpose of men is to be the best at what they do. Hence, they prioritize their work over salaries.

Keeping work first, does not belittle the value of money but it is just not their priority.
