"Suitable Title - The true Priorities of a life Well Lived"

It is impossible for a well educated and brave individual to prioritize making money above all else, as just one would not make dinner the main focus of their life. While people enjoy earning wealth. It should not be the primary objective. Instead, one's work and purpose should come first. With financial reward being secondary. This illustrated through examples of Soldier, Clergyman, and doctor. Who are brave and well educated and tightly trained, their work and purpose take precedence over financial gain.
