

3: Precise

Beyond Financial Motivations

The top priority of a brave, intellectual and well-educated person is not always the money but rather their choice is driven by their need. For instance, for healthy people dinner is for sustaining life, life is not about dinner only. Similarly, for healthy minded people money is a significant factor but not always their first choice. Likewise, soldiers prioritize fighting, clergyman prioritize preaching and doctors prioritize treating their ~~top~~ prime concern is never the money but is always remains their second and significant choice.

(83/237)
words.