

Money is not important for gentle men. They earn to fulfill their requirements. A number of wise people not only earn money but also enjoy the means of earning. A soldier performs his duty well even though if he does not receive his pay. Simply the duty of clergyman is to deliver a religious sermon. Similarly, doctors, they strive till the end to save the life of the patient without being driven by greed for money. So for all brave men, duty is their

Do not elaborate the example, just give an essence

Suggested titles for today's precis

"Money is not the End"

"Profession as a priority over money"

Suggestions for improvements:

Title: Sincerity toward Duty

Do not make complex compound sentences

Begin and end precis with a precise/short sentence

Avoid enlisting

Do not explain all three examples separately, rather give an essence

Ideal words for this preci : 78