History is full of many successful people who started their life with severe difficulties, but ended up being one of world's most successful and well-known people. Success, respect and fame ^{are} never served to anyone through easy means. The only thing which a person gets without any hardship is money from ancestral land. However, money only serves the worldly means; it can never buy happiness. At times, it takes decades to gain respect, while in contrary, a single moment is enough to attain shameful and dishonor.
