Q no. 3:

Read the Passage carefully and answer the questions.

Answer 1:

Because they had the mindset of that receiving charity is a business. They never considered it as bad. For them, it is a business, they worked for it and the money they got is their hard earned money. Collecting charity was just a sort of business for them that they continued even after becoming financially stable.

Answer 2:

Charity distribution is for those who are financially unstable. But In Karachi, many wealthy donors never pay attention to the family being charited. It is a name-sake event for them. Those who are actually in need of money remain in the dark. But those who considered collecting charity earn that money. We ^{can} say it is a wastage of money, it is not beneficial for deserving people.

Answer 3:

The writer is trying to explain the poor mindset that money is over everything. If business is delivering the money, then there is no wrong in it. No religion, can accuse them because they don't consider anything wrong or false. For business, there is no right no wrong.

Answer 4:

Such people comes from poor background. Their main motive is to earn money from whatever way. Once they start earning, they fear if they will stop, they might become poor. They don't invest in right thing because for them, that is the right thing. They think they deserve it because at some point of life they truly deserved it. They just consider it as an only source of money.

Answer 5:

If the charity practices remain unchecked people like such family will just snatch the money claiming to be rightful owner of it. While the real deserving one will remain deserving. It will economically and emotionally affect the society. The deserving will go to wrong paths in search of money and the cycle will continue.
