The Essay

"The media can make or break the peace process," says Senzo Ngubane, a researcher with African Center for the Constructive Resolution of Disputes. Media play important role particularly in times of conflicts especially during Arab Spring, China's use of 50 cent Army, Russian occupation and annexation of, during 2016 elections of President Trump. According to Horizon Research Facility that in 21st century media outlets has been used for geopolitical events across the globe. The Palestine-Israel conflict has been a long-standing and complicated issue with prolonged history, but in recent years this conflict has taken new dimensions through excessive use of media and its tools such as Ticktock, Youtube, Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. Through usage of these tools, media play important and positive role in Palestine-Israel conflict by raising humanitarian awareness of victims, disseminated information, further there has been increase in the speed and spread of information which increase the strategic interaction and adaption, and has provided the hope to resolve conflict by generating new data and information about Palestine-Israel conflict. On the other hand, the spread of misinformation psychologically impacted the society and the entrenched opinion further enhanced the divisions thus limited the possibility of peace between Palestine and Israel. Thus during Palestine-Israel conflict, media has been playing both positive and negative role. Therefore, in order to resolve conflict of Palestine and Israel, the media must need to play supporting role (i.e.) so that (there) the world becomes free from conflicts.
