The Essay

Imagine a world where the aim of media is to promote the truth factually without fear and censorship because media has a great role in building opinion, spreading happiness and collecting funds for charity. In the age of information, the power of media in shaping public opinion and foreign policy is growing day by day. Media not only involves digital platforms but print media also has a role in guiding and misguiding the public. The Palestinian media reflected a realistic image of what is taking place, the barricades, the destructions, the shootings, the settlers uprooting land and destroying houses and the imprisonment of thousands. Due to ethical challenges various documentaries can't be recorded. But on the other hand, due to AI and social media Palestine is taking ^{raising} funds and empathies from the Muslim world. Although media has highlighted the situation of Palestine but still there are challenges faced by media like privacy issues, national security, libel laws and complexities of editorial policy which create a negative impact on the mind of observer/reader. There is essential need to determine the nature of information that users can share and generate through various journalism platforms.

It's the media that give hope to the Palestinian people that they are supported and being praised. Their voice is sent to various international organizations for peace but on other hand due to AI and use of advance technology is making negative image of Israel and Islam as well. It was media that raised funds and voices against brutality in Palestine.
