Work on Spellings

Imperial hierarchies are deeply engraved in the psyche of colonizers and colonized - Colonial powers used to the narrative of civilization to legitimize their suppressive rule. This narrative was internalized by oppressed which made it easier for them to govern and control - This formed a love-hate relationship between colonizers and colonized. Thus, post-imperial consciousness depend on the narr reflects the ideologies of both sides. Those who were colonized think about the loss of culture, identity and exploitation of their resources while colonizers viewed decolonization as a moral loss of decolonization as historical rupture.

This dual perception has left post-imperial consciousness divided.

Q: 03

(i) Bashiran's family continue collecting money and ration as charity. even after becoming financially stable due to lack of dignity. During their days of poverty Bashiran's family got so immune to the feelings such as dignity and self-esteem that even after their situation improved, they felt no harm in accepting charity.

(ii) Through the story of Bashiran's family we can infer that the charity distribution system is not as effective as it should be. Often charitable money ends up in the hands of people who are not deserving. Donors should verify the financial situation of recipients in a subtle way to ensure that their charity is spent on rightful people.

(iii) The phrase: "No buisness is bad, and no religion is greater than buisness" depicts the mindset of people such as Bashiran's family. Such people will try to collected money without thinking whether it is morally correct or not; whether they deserve it or not; whether they have a right on this money or not. Through this phrase writer is trying to convey that for some people religious values, morality and dignity are concepts unheard of and money is their only supreme goal.

(iv) People like Bashiran's family hesitate to stop collecting charity for two reasons. firstly, they get so used to to collect free money that it gets difficult to let for them to let go of that money. Secondly, having experienced poverty money becomes their supreme ideal which they will earn from any possible way because they fear falling back into the pit of poverty.

(v) Unchecked charity practices can have multiple negative impacts on society in long run such as:

Write in single passage

- 1- All the charity can go to waste unintentionally because recipients are not deserving.
- 2- Those who actually deserve that money will be stripped off of their right.
- 3- The purpose of charity will not be fulfilled.

As the rain poured outside, the detective turned to the suspect and said, "I know you're hiding something." The suspect looked away, then muttered, "What makes you think that?" "Your silence, for one," replied the detective. "Besides you were seen near the warehouse that night." "That's impossible," he snapped. "I was out of town." "Really?" the detective leaned forward and placed a photo on the table. "Care to explain this, then?" the suspect stared at the image, his eyes narrowing. "Where did you get that," he whispered. "That doesn't matter," said the detective, "What matters is the truth."
