Ramanujan was a British-Indian mathematician whose work is being used in space technology even today. The dismal circumstances of his childhood and a disinterest in mathematics as well as other subjects could not get him admission in college. At last, a British professor, Hardy, took him to Cambridge, where he was awarded with a BA degree. He was the one who discovered the number 2520. The characteristic of this number is that it is divisible by all numbers from 1 to 9. Ramanujan was a vegetarian. This genius died in 1920, ^{at the age of 32 years} due to lack of inadequate food in Britain. A feature film has been made about him in India.
