

Poies

The author is mocking the civil servants who project their public service not in Offices, but on their social media accounts. They excessively display their power and money to hide the uncomfortable truths of an office job.

They act less as government servants and more as social media celebrities. In the process, the youth gets increasingly attracted to government jobs in want of a stable, decent, and respectable source of income. They start measuring their self-esteem against this single checkbox. There are many practical reasons for them to avoid the uncertain private sector. However, living in a country like Pakistan, they might feel compelled to rest on pretence rather than reality.

Title: Public servants or social Media Influencers?

Qno:4

- i. The government wants to keep the plan to itself.
- Viii. The lawyer tried to cite the correct law, but his opponent accused him of making false citations.
- iv. They left ~~the~~ car in the hotel where they had been staying.
The soldier was given a medal for his
- vi. courage while his colleagues cheered for him.
- v. Thore bagged from his hand while he was running down the street.

Q5: A

Let us explore the meaning of the quote, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you"; said the teacher. The student replied, "Does it mean that if I want kindness, I must first show kindness?"

The teacher nodded and said, "Exactly! It is about treating people the way you wish to be treated". The student smiled.

and added, "So, if I respect others, I am more likely to be respected in return."

"Yes", the teacher concluded, "That is the golden rule of life."

Q no 5

B. i. on

ii. for

iv. on

v. away from.

vi. in

vii. of

Q6-A

iii. Why would I poke my nose in your business? I have other fish to fry iv. I do not like the whole idea of civil service exams. Maybe, the grapes are sour.

vii. She saved a sed flying by backbiting you, but you chose to ignore her pernicious behaviour.

V. The country has gone bananas? It is embracing energy revolution without sufficient energy at home.

ii. She has donkey's year of life! Sixty and still Q7 : look like in her forties.

Hellen Keller, in her autobiography, mentioned a unique desire. She wanted to be given back her lost eyesight to live her life fully. She says that in the first day, she would see the faces of her beloved ones to see light of love getting reflected on eyes. On the second day, she wants to see the beauty of nature, such as sun rays, green forests, colours of flowers, and blue sky. On the third day, she wants to experience the lights of the world, din of the hazards, clouds at theatre, and artistic expressions to see the diversity of human life. This three-day gift for her would enlighten the whole darkness of her life.

Q no. 3

(a) In every kind of situation, people resort to food to escape the harsh realities of life. When in depression, people eat Haleem. In rain, people think of Pattice. When faced with a heatwave, people see falooda as the first resort. Every heated family dispute ends with this sentiment, 'Let's go out ~~for~~ eat something'.

(b) The cricket matches in Pakistan is less about the game itself and more about snacks. When the game gets at its peak, the audience go outside stadium to have gol gappas to ease the tense situation. This is how the audience entertains itself more than the game.

(c) Pakistan's amusement parks are congested and not expansive enough. They are usually at long distances and people start getting back pain with just one side. Those who visit parks often have to get their MRI tests to relieve their physical pain.

IV.

People have become obese with increasing waitlines, but their obsession with food does end nowhere. Their horizons to try new food in different places remain endless. Food is the only entertainment they like to enjoy in their lives.

V.

Even if Pakistan had a developed entertainment industry, People's reliance on food would still be the same. Since Pakistan has a very uncertain electricity, people would still resort to food out of stress. Also, the conservative environment of the country would also have prevented the people to enjoy the theater wholly. Thus the experience would not have been much different then.