PrecisAnswer to 2The Hybrid Civil Servants

Unlike their predecessors, Civil Servants these days are more like life style influencers. They keep on touting about their lavish life style on social media. Owing to this fact, it has now become a bridge to pursue social status. Albeit some people join it to pursue their legitimate avocations, others are overly obsessed with it. This is a result of touting on social media, leading to an amalgam of influencers and servant at a same time. Some contend that they are inspiration for coming generations, while other argue that there are other serious matters to handle, civil servant should focus on them. To boil it down, display of power matters more than power itself in Pakistan. Alas! all new aspirants are looking for the same display of power.

Comprehension

Q1: Ans 1: The writer has given several humorous examples to portray the image of food in Pakistan. Pakistani always remember food whether life is going smooth or odd. During depression and bad times, food begins to dawn on them. During cricket match, the gol guppas are enjoyed more than a match. Across the length and breadth, there is hopelessness, but this populace of 241 million always remembers food.

Q2: Ans 2: Cricket matches in Pakistan are often more about food because it is always a situation on the fence, and as Pakistani aren't on worry by eating food, they console themselves with food.

Q3: Ans 3: It is inferred from the author's attitude towards Pakistan's amusement park that he/she is exaggerating the fact that one would need MRI after visiting amusement park. The author himself is too much obsessed with food and has slothful behaviour. That is why he/she averts physical entertainment, but likes to entertain taste buds.

Q4: Ans 4: The statement implies that Pakistanis are getting fat. Their waitlines are expanding. But there is dearth of any achievement in Pakistan.

Q5: Ans 5: If Pakistan had developed entertainment industries, the situation would have been the same. The author actually mistaken it for the lack of entertainment. The real reason is laziness and the culture of scrolling all day long on social media. Amusement parks require energy to go. If Pakistanis had it they would ~~is amusement park~~. Go on a walk and run.

Question No

Helen Keller in her autobiography wished about her life; if she were given her sight back for three days, how would she live those days. She says that on first day she would like to see her relatives to feel the depth of their love. On second day, she wants to see the ambience of nature: the sun rays, trees, the Chroma of flowers and the elevation of sky. On third day, she wants to see the clock of society: waking markets, theaters, and architecture to admire the wisdom of man. To her this three-day gift would be equivalent the sight of whole life.
