Mark Twain said, "If you don't read the newspaper, you are uninformed.

If you do, you are misinformed."

This quote highlights the growing threat of information warfare, affecting the psychological and emotional intelligence of individuals. In this modern age, the ten-minute of social media of biased and incorrect facts, ranging from social to political issue. Extending to the unreliable news, reels, shorts

and videos that include defamatory

remarks about celebrities, stark criticism breeding grounds of disinformation.

They facilitated the speedy spread of disinformation, and adversely affected the public opinion and social peace.

Fastly grown up threat of disinformation hampered the thinking process of humans and made them puppet for those, wielding them for political, religious and economic interests.

Not an impressive introduction.

Must improve it

Firstly, the threat of propagandizing religious beliefs and values has promoted intolerance and extremism in a society. An example of 'Halwa' Incident is worthwhile to quote here. Last year, this incident stole the headlines of news channels and Instagram. What happened was that the mob attacked a woman, wearing the dress printed with arabic poetry. But the people with limited knowledge and more precise those who were deeply influenced by the conservative scholars, viewed that woman's dress as desecration of the Quranic verses. Neither of them tried to read what has been printed on that woman's dress in arabic and gather together to attack her. She hid in the nearby shopping centre while the mob was standing outside to attack her. She was too afraid of their emotional flagration and called the police for help. She was rescued by the Punjab police safely, but this incident became viral on social media because of the word 'halwa' that was written on the dress. This incident highlighted that how the spread of misinformation creates instability in the society and reduce tolerance and promote extremism.

Secondly, the propaganda becomes the grave threat when misinformation spreading is wielded as a tactic to wield broader political and geo-political interests. The 21st century witnessed the rise of authoritarian, populist and nationalists leaders. From Asia to America, information is wielded as a double-edged sword to gain public support.

on the one hand and mask illegal and unethical ~~acts~~ self-interest as public interests. Take an example of recent Iran-Israel conflict.

From the broader perspective, it seems as a conflict between two adversaries due to risks to national security. But if the deep view is taken, it is the product of propaganda that the western adversaries of Iran shaped to sabotage it. As Israel launched the airstrike over Iran nuclear facilities, claiming it is an act to stop it from building a nuclear bomb, opposed from reality. The International Atomic Energy Agency even declared Iran deficient in developing nuclear weapon. Additionally, the President of Iran also made it clear that his country is not seeking nuclear weapons but will assert 'legitimate rights' in the peaceful use of nuclear energy. On the backdrop, there was actually a carefully crafted sabotaging strategy of Israel to further paralyze Iran economically and eliminate the prominent threat to its security for forever. Iran is basically the hindrance in Israel's expansionist and Zionist goal in the Palestine. Iran allegedly seem supporting the Hamas in the Gaza and the Houthis Rebel in the Red Sea. They both allegedly viewed as the proxy of Iran against Israel. In order to kick out this barrier from the way, the Israel, with support of his western allies attacked the national sovereignty of Iran in the pretext of 'saving the world from nuclear threat' despite rigorous international laws to protect national sovereignty.

Similar to this, How comes the Trump's "MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN" policy that played a vital role in his victory during the second term.
