QUESTION TWO

Precis Title: ~~Discrediting~~
Discrediting the opponent through ad hominem.

An example of ad hominem is when an attorney in a British court of law is instructed to discredit the opponent rather than his argument. Lincoln used this technique in his first jury case as a lawyer in front of a much experienced lawyer. He is said to have won a case by pointing out the opponent's upturned shirt and ensuring the audience that they should doubt his credibility. This tactic has been used often. President Roosevelt and President Eisenhower's health ~~was~~ was pinpointed. Referring to Roosevelt as 'that cripple in the White House' was particularly ruthless.

Two little frogs were playing about at the edge of a pool, when an ox came down to the water to drink and by accident trod on one of them and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother "where he was." "he is dead, mother," said the little frog. "An enormous, big creature with four legs came to our pool this morning and trampled him down in the mud. enormous? was he as big as this?" said the frog, puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh yes! much bigger." was the answer. The frog puffed herself out still more. "was he as big as this?" said she. "Oh yes, yes, mother. Much bigger," said the little frog and yet again she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball - as big as she began but then she burst.

QUESTION SEVEN

I wish that we could play again, Gali Danda, Treasure Hunt, Baapu Taapu and Hide-and-Seek. If those bygone days return then we would be able to those happy and carefree moments again. We would run with our friends in the alleys, laughing and we would forget the trivial fights during our play. Those days have become memories, and the heart often longs for those moments when life was simple, wholesome and carefree.
