Two little frogs were playing about at the edge of a pool, when an ox came down to the water to drink, and by accident, trod on one of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother, "where he was?" "He is dead, mother," said the little frog. "An enormous big creature - with four legs - came to our pool this morning and trampled him down in the mud; enormous was he!" "Was he as big as this?", said the frog, puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh! Yes, much bigger," said the little frog, and yet again, she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball; as big as she began but, then, she burst.

Question 7

Translation

Were that we could play those games such as sticks-ball, treasure-seeking, Haps Tapu and hide and seek. We would have felt merry-making and moments of ease, had those nostalgic days returned. We would have played in the streets with our friends, laughed and forgotten petty squabbles during the play. Those days have become only as memories today. And heart oftenly feels the lacking of those moments when life used to be simple, pleasant and sorrow-free.

Question 3

Comprehension Passage

Q1

According to the text, Captain Ahsan Malik was assigned to defend the village of Kamalpur during 1971 war. He was given 140 soldiers from 31 Baluch to defend this village on border of East Pakistan.

Q2

American Pilot Charles Brown and German Pilot Franz Stigler reunited after 40 years. They became friends and their friendship lasted until death.

Q3

The story suggests that true bravery is beyond fighting. True bravery means maintaining humanity and ethical principles of war. Even your worst enemy ought to be treated humanely and ethically.

Q4

Acts of courage and kindness profoundly affect relationships between former enemies. It helps in forming friendship and forging strong bond between former enemies. It also help in saving lives. The story of two pilots is an example how acts of courage and kindness cemented their friendship until death.

Q5

If Franz Stigler had shot down Charles Brown's B-17, Brown would have been killed immediately as he was helpless and at the mercy of Stigler. Their story would not have been worthy of mention at all in history books. It would have been lost in many stories of warfare where killing and blood-letting is a common phenomenon. What set this story apart was an act of kindness by Stigler where he refused to take down a helpless enemy.

Question 2

Preece's writing

The Art of Ad Hominem

^{author}
The ~~text~~ quoted an example of fallacy from a scene in a British Court of law. When defense attorney takes the stage, his partner suggests that they have no case and he should discredit and malign the Plaintiff's attorney. He suggests to evade the issue and resort to Ad hominem. Lincoln, as a lawyer, also resorted to it in a case against a veteran and seasoned lawyer. He used the lawyer's unique shirt design to evade the real issue and won the case. This fallacy has been there for a long time and sophists have used it freely too. It was employed against

Eisenhower's health during 1956
nominations. Similarly, when enemies of Roosevelt used it against him,
they were using a crude version of ad hominem.
