Q:2: Make a precis of the following text and suggest a suitable title.

The Use of Ad Hominem Fallacy

The classic example of Ad hominem fallacy is when the attorney for the defense in a British court takes the floor, his partner suggests launching a personal attack on the opponent. Abraham Lincoln as a young lawyer once used ad hominem in a harmless manner by mocking his opponent's dressing and dismissing his opponent's argument and experience. The ad hominem fallacy has been used throughout history. During the 1956 elections, the physical health of President Eisenhower was questioned. The harmful use of this fallacy was practised when Roosevelt's rivals questioned his policies due to his disability.

Q:5 (B):

Two little frogs were playing about at the edge of a pool when an ox came down to the water to drink, and by accident trod on one of them and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother, "Where was he?" "He is dead, mother," said the little frog. "An enormous, big creature with four legs came to our pool this morning and trampled him down in the mud." "Enormous was he? Was he as big as this?" said the frog, puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh, yes much bigger," was the answer. The frog puffed herself out still more. "Was he as big as this?" said she. "Oh, yes, yes mother, much bigger," said the little frog. And yet again she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball. "As big as..." she began, but then she burst.
