Part - II

Q. 2 :

Title :

This fallacy is exemplified by the defence attorney in British law court when his partner advised him to use ad hominem. In one of his first jury cases, Lincoln used ad hominem when he saw his opponent wearing a shirt which buttoned up the back. He argued that his opponent doesn't know how to wear a shirt and supposedly won the case due to that.

It happened similarly with the health of President Eisenhower in 1956 and Franklin Roosevelt in 1944.

Two little frogs were playing about at the edge of a pool when an ox came down to the water to drink, and, by accident, trod on one of them and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother where he was. 'He is dead, mother,' said the little frog. An enormous, big creature with four legs came to our pool this morning and trampled him down in the mud. Enormous was he? 'Was he as big as this?', said the frog puffing herself out to look as big as possible. 'Oh yes, much bigger,' was the answer. The frog puffed herself out still more. 'Was he as big as this?' said she. 'Oh yes, yes mother much bigger,' said the little frog and yet again she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball. As big as she began, but then she burst.
