Q2

Suggested title = The fallacy of Ad
Hominem

The passage discusses the fallacy of ad Hominem, where ~~interesting~~ instead of addressing a real issue or an argument, one attacks the person ~~present~~ ^{presenting} it. A British Cart, experience illustrates this tactic, while Lincoln's clever use of it in a jury case shows its persuasive power. His opponent's ~~unusual~~ unusual shirt became the focus, swaying the jury despite strong legal points against. This fallacy has existed since old times, even used by Sophists and seen in modern politics. While sometimes witty, ironic, it can also be malicious, as in attacks on Roosevelt's worsening disability which diverted attention from real-world issues.

Two little frogs were playing about at the edge of a pool, when an ox came to the water to drink. And by accident, trod on one of them, and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog misseal him, she asked his brother: "Where he was?" He is dead, mother, said the little frog. An enormous big creature with four legs come to our pool this morning, and he trampled him down in the mud." "Enormous, was he? Was he as big as this?" Said the frog, puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh yes much, bigger" was the answer. The frog puffed herself out still more, "Was he as big as this?" said she. "Oh yes, yes, mother, much bigger," said the little frog. And yet again she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball. "As big as she began..." but she burst.

Q 7 Imagination

Wish, we could relive those ~~days~~ old days where we would play games such as, tipot, treasure hunt, hothupethu, hide and seek. If only, we could go back in time to feel those emotions of happiness and carefreeness. We would run through the streets, laughed and played and later, we would even forget our petty issues. However, those days have now become a distant memory and the heart yearns for those moments where life was simple, happy and without any worry.
