The Ad Hominem Fallacy: Attacking the Man, Not the Argument

Title: Lincoln's Use of Intelligence

06/20

The ad hominem fallacy involves attacking the person instead of addressing their argument.

The whole story highlighted the young lawyer's intelligence - As the lawyer of other side enters in British court, Lincoln's friend gives him a handwritten note - This note provides confidence for the case. Lincoln's opponent presented points that was against to Lincoln's case - Lincoln, at very ^{start} was confused but when his turn came he confidently gave a short argument - He said to the jury that they wouldn't be impressed by the pretending nature of his opponent - He further pointed out the dressing of his opponent and told a shocking argument about the new city-slicker shirts of 1840's - Opponent was wearing shirt's front side at his back - These arguments made a path for Lincoln winning - Contrary to this, the use of ad hominem varies in Roosevelt practice and fear for Eisenhower nominations -

Question No.03

Answer No.01

The text suggested that Ahsan Malik was assigned to defend the village of Kamalpur - on the border of East Pakistan he defend that village along with 140 soldiers and 31 Baluch. His bravery brings "sitara-e-jurat", an honorable position.

Question No.02

Answer:

Franz Sigler reunited with his friend after 40 years - Charles Brown was damaged by German fighters but he commanded Franz not to attack the enemy. If Sigler followed the passion of shooting down the enemy then his friend would have died. So, Sigler followed Charles warning and they reunited at the end.

Answer No.03

The story suggests that bravery demands sacrifices - Ahsan Malik bravery to defend Kamalpur, Franz Sigler response to his commander's warning, and Marshal Edwin defying of Hitler's rules reveals the true warrior - so, the true bravery beyond fighting is necessary to maintain ethics and human survival.

Answer NO.04

The acts of kindness and courage affect the relationships between enemies.

As the text suggests that Field Marshal Manekshaw led Indian Army and when he saw the bravery of Ahsan Malik, he requested his Pakistani counterpart to award Ahsan Malik. The act of courage ^{and kindness} highlights the relation between enemies.

Answer NO.05

Franz Sigler was a passionate person.

He followed his commander's warning

instead of shot down. If he had shot down Charles B-17 and followed the common practice of shooting down the enemy, Charles would have died and their inspiring story would never have existed.

I wish we played again like Guli-Danda, Ghazary ki talash, Hapu Tapu, and ankh-macholi. If the old days were back, then we felt again the moments of ^{carefree} unworriedness
and happiness: we laughed, ran in streets with our friends, and forgotten the small quarrels. That days became only memories, and heart often felt these moments when life was simple, happy,
and unworried.
