was more interested in his dress-code. He was wearing an expensive shirt, but it was buttoned wrongly.

Lincoln, on his turn, told the jury that justice should prevail without getting influenced by the opponent's lawyer, conscious of the law. The reason is because he is unaware of how to wear a shirt properly. The practical usage of ad hominem can be seen throughout history. For example, usage by Sophists, nominations of 1956 and the same happened with Roosevelt in 1944.

✓ Two little frogs were playing about, at the edge of a pool. When an ox came down, to the water, to drink and by accident trod on one of them and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother, where he was. "He is dead," mother said, "the little frog." An enormous big creature, with four legs, came to our pool this morning and trampled him down in the mud. "Enormous! Was he, was he as big as this?" said the frog puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh yes! much bigger," was the answer. The frog puffed herself out still more. "Was he, as big as this," said she. "Oh! yes, yes mother much bigger" said the little frog. And yet again, she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost, as round as, a ball. Translation of the passage:

I wish we could play stone stashing, treasure hunting, hopscotch and hide and seek once again. If the old days would come back then we would have been able to feel those emotions of happiness and carelessness once again. We would have ran (and laughed) played with our friends on the streets and would have forgotten the small disputes during the play. Today, those days have just become a memory and the heart really misses those moments when life was simple, happy and without any problems.
