B- Punctuation4/5

Two little frogs were playing about at the edge of a pool when an ox came down to the water to drink, and by accident trod on one of them, and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother where he was. "He is dead," mother said, the little frog. An enormous big creature with four legs came to our pool this morning and trampled him down in the mud. "Thomas?" "Was he?" was he as big as this? said the frog puffing

 herself out to look as big as possible.
 "Oh yes! Much bigger" was the answer.
 The frog puffed herself out still more.
 "Was he as big as this?" said she. "Oh yes!
 Yes, mother. Much bigger," said the little frog and yet again she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball. A big as --) she began, but then she burst.

Question #2 — Precis

The Ad Hominem Fallacy: Attacking the Man, Not the Argument

The History of Fallacy

04/20

The use of fallacy as a tactic is explained by a scene of British court when the defense lawyer (Lincoln) used it to abuse the opposite lawyer or the ~~direction~~ of his power to win the argument. The other lawyer, a well experienced person had legal command over the case. He was wearing a new black buttoned styled shirt of that time which Lincoln targeted and used as an argument to convince the jury against his opponent instead of valid arguments. His opponent won the case. The use of misconception seems as old as the history of race and implied. After for the nomination of Eisenhower and Franklin

Roosevelt whose enemies used it against him by wrongly using a crippled white house policy.
