

General instructions to be followed to pass essay

Role of Women in Sports

1- Spend time on rightly comprehension of the topic, you won't pass the essay unless and until you addressed the asked part

Outline

1. Introduction

Thesis Statement:

Women in Sports Plays a

Grammar mistake

3- Try to add hook in the introduction. The length of introduction must be of 2 sides transformative role by breaking stereotypes, unifying national representation, and contributing to long-term societal progress, as it promotes

4- your topic sentence in your argument must be aligned with the ending sentence

Health, Leadership, and equal opportunities for all

5- Avoid firstly, secondly, thirdly etc. in outline

2. Importance of Women's Participation in Sports

6- add references in your arguments with proper source. Go for diversification of references

(a) Promotes gender equality by challenging traditional stereotypes

7- Do not add new idea or point in Conclusion

(b) Improves Physical health through fitness as well as disease prevention

8- You won't pass the essay if make more than 4-5 grammatical mistakes

(c) Increase mental Well-being by reducing stress while building confidence.

9- outlines that are not self explanatory or does not aligned to with the essay statement are liable to mark 0 and the essay would become null and void

10- always try to be relevant to the topic, if even your 1 or 2 arguments are irrelevant, the examiner would not pass your essay.

- (d) Develops leadership skills such as teamwork along with discipline
- (e) Contributes to national and international representation
- (f) Creates economic opportunities in sports career plus sponsorships.
- (g) Provides role models that inspire younger girls to participate in sports

3. Way forward to Promote women in Sports

- a) Equal access to Facilities and Funding
- b) Training and Professional coaching for women.
- c) Awareness campaigns to change public attitudes.
- d) Schools and Community level sports programs for girls.

4. Conclusion

You are not presenting the role of women in sports rather you are talking about the impacts of women participation in sports.

You haven't understood the topic at all.

Must work on your topic comprehension

Improve your phrasing

Word selection must be improved

Must attend the tutorial session for further suggestions and mistakes

Essay:

~~"Sports are not just games; they are a platform for empowerment." This statement highlights the growing importance of women in strong world. Historically, women faced significant social & cultural restrictions that limited their involvement in competitive sports, confining them mostly to domestic roles. Now, women in sports plays a transformative role by breaking stereotypes, uplifting national representation, and contributing to long-term societal progress, as it promotes health, leadership, and equal opportunities for all. According to a UN women report, that actively encourage and support women's participation in sports experience higher levels of gender equality, social development, and empowerment. Today, the participation of women in sports is essential for promoting gender equality, enhancing physical~~

Who said this?

Expressions mistake

Avoid

Informal writing

Grammatical mistake

Punctuation mistake

Never provide information in your introduction

Avoid cutting

Introduction is not up to the mark.

fitness, building mental resilience, and developing leadership and teamwork skills. It provides equal access to sports facilities, professional coaching, and awareness campaigns to create an inclusive environment that empowers women and allows them to contribute meaningfully to national pride and societal progress.

one of the strongest arguments validates the women's participation in sports helps promote gender equality by challenging traditional stereotypes that consider sports only for men. In the past, society often expected women to stay at home and discouraged them from taking part in physical activities. When women compete in sports, they show strength, discipline, and leadership.

No analysis. You are not proving your stance

According to a UN Women report (2013), countries that encouraged women in sports show higher levels of gender equality and social development. This demonstrates that Supporting female athletes help break Supporting female helps break societal barriers and changes public attitudes towards women's capabilities. Sports thus provides an important platform for empowering women and promoting equality in society.

However, Participation in Sports significantly improves women's physical health by keeping the body active and fit. Regular Physical activity strengthens muscles, increase stamina, and improves overall Cardiovascular health. Moreover, engaging in sports helps prevent various diseases, including obesity, diabetes, and heart problems. For example, Mahoor Shahzad, a Pakistani badminton player, maintains a strict training routine that keeps her physically strong and healthy. Women who participate in Sports are more likely to adopt healthy lifestyles, including proper diet and regular exercises, which further reduces the risk of chronic illnesses.

Therefore, sports not only enhance fitness but also act as a preventive measure against many health issues, contributing to women's long-term well-being.

These are the roles but implications

Furthermore, participation in sports plays a crucial role in improving women's mental well-being. Physical activity helps reduce stress, anxiety, and depression by releasing endorphins, which are natural mood enhancers. Sports also build self-confidence as women learn to set goals, overcome challenges, and achieve success in competitive environments. According to a (WHO) Report, regular physical activity can reduce the risk of depression by 20-30%.

Showing the strong connection between exercise and mental health. Engaging in team sports also improves social interaction, cooperation, and a sense of belonging, further

Supporting emotional stability. Therefore, women's involvement in sports not only strengthens mental health but also empowers them with confidence, resilience, and a positive outlook on life.

Moreover, women develop essential leadership skills, including teamwork, discipline, and decision-making.

Through sports, women learn to coordinate with teammates, follow rules, and take responsibility for their actions, which strengthens their ability to lead in other areas of life. According to a European Journal of Sport Science (2010), it involved in organized sports are significantly more likely to demonstrate leadership and collaborative skills than non-athletes.

highlighting the role of sports in personal development. Training and competition also teach patience, strategic thinking, and resilience.

: 35

highlighting the role of sports in personal development. Training and competitions also teach patience, strategic thinking, and resilience. Thus, sports not only improve physical and mental health but also empower women to take on leadership roles, work effectively in teams, and challenges with confidence.

~~Also~~ Significantly contributes to national pride by representing their country on international platforms.

When female athletes achieve success in global competitions, they not only gain recognition for themselves but also elevate their nation's image worldwide.

For example, Sana Mir, former captain of the Pakistan women's cricket team, led her team to numerous victories in international tournaments. Supporting women in sports is essential not only for individual success but also for promoting national prestige.

Date 3

Consequently women athletes serve as powerful role models, inspiring younger girls to take part in sports and pursue their dreams. When young girls see women achieving success in sports, they gain confidence and motivation to challenge societal norms and engage in physical activities.

For instance, Samina Baig, the first Pakistani woman to climb Mount Everest, became a global inspiration and a role of model for countless young girls in Pakistan. Role models like her demonstrate that dedication, discipline, and hard work can lead to success, regardless of gender.

Society can cultivate a culture where girls feel empowered to participate in sports, build skills, and contribute positively to their community.

Although providing equal access to sports facilities and funding is essential to promote women's participation in athletics. Many female face challenges due to limited access to training grounds, equipment, and financial support, which restricts their potential. Ensuring that women have the same opportunities as men allows them to develop their skills. For instance, countries that allocate dedicated funds and build sports infrastructure for women, such as gyms, stadiums, and training centers. Equal funding also enables women to hire professional coaches and attend national and international tournaments.

On the other hand professional training and coaching is essential for enhancing women's performance in sports. Without proper guidance, female athletes cannot reach their full potential or compete effectively at national and international level. According to a UN Women report (2012), countries that offer structured Coaching programs for women athletes show significantly higher success rates in competition.

professional Coaching not only improves technical skills but also teaches discipline, strategy, and personal development. By investing in female Coaches, training camps, and mentoring programs. Effective training programs also inspire confidence and encourage more girls to pursue seriously.

In Contrast Awareness Campaigns play a vital role in changing societal attitudes toward women in sports. In many countries, cultural stereotypes and conservative mindsets discourage girls from participating in activities. Public campaigns, media promotion, and community programs help challenge these perceptions and highlight the achievements of women.

For instance, governments and sports organizations that organize workshops, sports festivals, and campaigns emphasizing gender equality have observed an increase in girls enrolling in sports programs. Awareness efforts also educate families about the benefits of sports, including health, confidence, and leadership development. By changing public attitudes, societies can create a supportive environment where women feel encouraged to participate in sports.

Finally, implementing school and community-level sports programs for girls is essential to encourage early participation and build long-term athletic skills. These programs provide safe spaces, proper guidance, and structured opportunities for girls to engage in sports from a young age. According to the social learning theory by Albert Bandura,

Date 4

Children learn behaviors and develop skills by observing and imitating others. By seeing peers and role models actively participate in sports, girls are more likely to adopt healthy, active lifestyles and develop confidence and teamwork skills. Schools and community programs also help identify talented, nurture their potential, and create a higher-level competitions.

To wrap up of the whole discussion women's participation in sports plays a transformative role in society by promoting gender equality, improving physical and mental health, and developing leadership and teamwork skills. Their achievements at national and international levels bring pride to the country and inspire younger generations to pursue athletics. Despite significant progress, women

Still face challenges such as limited resources, societal restrictions, and lack of professional training. It requires equal access to facilities and funding, professional coaching, awareness campaigns, and school- and community-level programs that encourage girls to participate in sports from an early age. Ultimately, supporting women in sports contributes to stronger, healthier, and more progressive communities.