Title: The Deception of
The Ad Hominem Fallacy A Tactical Master

06/20

Precis:

The author explains the ad hominem fallacy, attacking a person instead of addressing the argument. A famous courtroom joke illustrates this tactic: when there is no solid argument, discredit the opponent instead.

Lincoln is shown using a harmless version of this strategy as a young lawyer, turning the jury against his skilled opponent by mocking the man's unusual shirt, and winning the case through psychological insight rather than legal strength. The fallacy, however, is ancient and often misused. While discussing a leader's health, as with Eisenhower Roosevelt's
