The Ad Hominem Fallacy: Attacking the Man, Not the Argument

07/20

The Fallacy of Ad Hominem

The author argues about the case in a British court of law which emphasizes that if the defense attorney can not handle the case, just abuse the plaintiff attorney using ad hominem fallacy. As Lincoln was a young lawyer who was not aware of the use of ad hominem. Consequently, he lost the case because the opponent lawyer was experienced and he had legal points by his side. Lincoln's argument on his opponent's shirt caused him to believe that he had won the case.

Among 140 soldiers, 31 of them were Baluch. They fought with extra-ordinary bravery and Ahsan Malik was awarded Sitara-e-jurat.

(Part - ii)

American pilot Charles Brown and Ace pilot Franz Stigler met after 40 years. This meeting further strengthened

2 Their friendship and it lasted until death. Moreover, if Franz Sigger had pursued the common practice of shooting down the enemy, Charles Brown would have died and their story would never have existed.

(Part - iii)

3 The story suggests that the meaning of true bravery lies in maintaining humanity and avoiding unethical conducts even on the battlefield. If soldiers ignore these valuable and moral principles, it would result in the countless loss of innocent lives.

However, if they upheld these moral values and laws, they would not only inspire the upcoming generations but also maintains the dignity of war.

(Part - iv)

The writer mentioned the story of two soldiers named Najja Abud and Zahid

Haftlang. They met unexpectedly after 18 years of Iran-Iraq war in a waiting room in Canada. The act of kindness and courage of Zahid Haftlang while risking his life to save Najja Abud had proven that humanity can form life long bonds and friendship between former enemies. The uncontrolled laughters and fearless emotions have further strengthened their friendship.

(Part - v)

If Franz Stigler had not recalled his commander's warning and had shot down Charles Brown's B-17, Charles Brown would have died on the spot.

Moreover, not only their inspiring story but have never existed also their friendship would have never existed. The conduct of ethics and humanity have saved a life and a lifelong friendship.

TRANSLATION

I wish that we could play again the plays like tipcat, treasure hunt, hopscotch and hide and seek. We could live those happy and fearless moments again, if those days can come back. We could live the same life with our friends in the streets while forgetting the tensed moments of our lives. Those days are just left as memories now, and heart often feels that those moments are missing. When life was simple, joyfull and fearless.
