4. Conclusion.

As we are living in a democratic country so we have to exercise a healthy democracy in Pakistan. Pakistan is an Islamic country. As its name shows "The Islamic Republic Country". So to make it a healthy democratic country, we should follow some rules. Democracy holds a crucial role in the country's society. It emphasizes the necessity of immediate free and fair elections. In a healthy democracy, people freely live. They have equal rights. No discrimination is found between the high class and the poor.

There are many pathways to a healthy democracy. First of all education is the key to healthy democracy. In Pakistan, the Bradari system plays a crucial role in the party's choice of candidates. But in this case, we have to educate the people. As they have free choice of vote casting. So there is a need to give awareness to new generations. The old people have conservative thinking. They are following a specific political parties. So they compel their all family members and all their relatives to elect their selective candidates. So there is a big need to educate the people. So that a healthy democracy comes in its true sense.

There is also a big way of democracy to cast ~~the~~ the vote freely. People should feel free to cast their votes. There should be no pressure on them. What they want, they should feel free to do it. So we shall bring a healthy democracy if we use our right freely without any pressure of external powers. Otherwise the result will be same as we are facing now-a-days.

The role of media is very important. Media also has a significant part to play in choosing the right people for the welfare of society. If media exercises its role positively, a healthy ~~gov~~ democratic government would come in front of people.

Unfortunately, we are living in a democratic country but we can not practice it into its true sense. Corruption in every department of Pakistan makes everyone insecure. We can not acquire our rights. Even political parties buy the votes at a high price. People fall a prey by political leaders and become selfish. ~~and~~ So we should realise our responsibility and do not greed. As it is necessary for the future generation of Pakistan. So we make our country corruption free. If we want to exercise a healthy democracy in our Pakistan.

We should make our institutions more accountable. If we strengthen the system of accountability, we can exercise a healthy democracy in Pakistan. In Pakistan, criminals succeed by the power of their unfair means. They buy each and everything with the power of wealth. Sincere people will go behind the jail. So everyone should be accountable of his doing. In this sense, we make our country a healthy democratic country. Where guilty and sinful people should be punished to make a state a real democratic country.

There should be a criteria for the selection of representatives. But in contrary, our country has not set <sup>any</sup> criteria. Political leaders having low degree of qualification would elect. As a result, poor governance will be implemented. So there is a big need to select such candidates having higher qualification. Because a qualified person can run a institution in a better way. By using illegal ways, uneducated leaders come in government, they slur the rights of people. Hence imbalance society would

Education system in Pakistan:

This will provide equal opportunity to the students of rural areas to compete with students of urban areas in the job market. The government should take measures to get school buildings vacated which are occupied by feudal lords of Sindh, Balochistan and Punjab. Efforts should be made to ensure that proper education is provided in those schools.

The federal government is paying attention to the vocational and technical training, but it is important to make the already existing vocational and technical training centres more efficient so that skilled youth could be produced.

Federal government should play a supportive role vis-à-vis the provinces for the early compliance of the constitutional obligation laid
