4 Conclusion

Edison, a famous scientist, inventor of Direct Current, was renowned by his invention in his era. He was a great teacher of his time when Tesla emerged as an innovator and scientist. Tesla proposed a theory of alternating Current (AC) and conducted a live experiment, in front of almost 40 top geniuses, on electromagnetivity. He passed electromagnetic current through his body and lit the bulb. This magnificent experiment shocked the geniuses and made them applaud the young man, Tesla. Soon, the old geniuses spread the news of Tesla's experiment and Tesla was become famous and wealthy. This scenario was undigestible for Edison, perceiving himself as failure against Tesla. Edison started campaigns against Tesla and electrified animals, showing the harms of AC.

versus DC. His multiple efforts did not bother Tesla and he continued his work with resilience. At last, Edison affected his defeat against propagandizing Tesla's invention without affecting Tesla at all. This perseverance of Tesla upon his invention is marked in world with great respect and appreciation. This act shows that whether the opponent is strong and experienced, his or her insecurities can never defeat the confidence of any person, provided the person believes in one-self.

Confidence is marked with silent treatment and insecurities with loudness. Confidence is known for building up character, behaviour, nations and states. Similarly, insecurities are notorious destruction of character, behaviour, nation or a state. Insecurities can be perceived as negative confidence upon anything that finds interest in destroying only. A negative confidence can build anything temporary but the long lasting impacts never last long. Confidence is a character of self-resilience, self-assurance, self-belief, determination, apprehension, appreciation, reliability, fearlessness, faithfulness, hopefulness, and doubtlessness. Whereas insecurity is a character of self-destruction, self-disbelief, depreciation, unreliability, fearfulness, faithlessness, hopelessness and doubtfulness. Confidence can be in one-self or other. It can be of religious belief, power, knowledge, information, education or in some-one's capability of confrontation. Taking in consideration, Hazrat Muhammad's (PBUH) belief on Allah Almighty to help Him always, Quaid-e-Azam self-belief in the unification of Muslims and separate homeland achievement, Nelson Mandela's confidence and hope of self-resilience and Martin Luther King Speech "I have a dream". All shows a different meaning of confidence in different situation but the commonality is being opposed by disbelief and insecurities yet ultimate victory. The relation of confidence and insecurity is similar like life and death, happiness and joy sadness, victory and failure, Up and down, right and wrong, hope and fear, and water and fire. Thus, Confidence can never loses but insecurities do, which will be proved in the essay.

In the early ages of the world, when the history begun, there were several tribes from which geniuses ~~as~~ were born. These geniuses proved themselves through their innovations and discoveries. But as their life findings were preserved in books which were stored in libraries. It is believed that that library library was in South Africa, in between Sahara desert. Those libraries were burnt by the Mongols, due to which that era was named ~~as~~ Dark ages. The cruelty of Mongols destroyed almost everything. But the people of that time did not lose hope and confidence. They regain their pride and Ibn-e-Rust, the man behind renaissance, brought people into light from dark ages of Mongols' insecurity that would otherwise harm their rule. The confidence of Ibn-e-Rust brought people into light and defeated insecurity silently but devastatingly.

Another name of confidence is self-resilience. Self-resilience can destroy the speaker of self-doubtfulness. It paves way and teaches to be firm and strong upon oneself, no matter what the insecurities of people says. A famous saying "Hundred mouths, Hundred comments" contextualizing "logo ka kam hai kehna, log to kehney rahain gay", strongly supports the stance of confidence "is silent and insecurity is loud. People could not never stop to destroying confidence with their insecurities which could not help them think outside box. Socrates was forced to drink Hemlock or rather step back from his teachings which public believed was destroying youth. Socrates preferred Hemlock, poison, than stepping back. Althoughs definitely, his act took his life but it ~~was~~ portrayed the cruelty of public. And this is ~~stipulated~~ that Socrates die in confidence but is still live in books, theories and philosophies.

Fearlessness is also a trait of confidence. ~~or~~ On contrary, fearfulness is a trait of insecurity. Both are poles apart and similarly, can not meet at a same point. One has to be victorious over other and stand upright. Napoleon's insecurity for power took him to stage of idealism rather rationality; and he attacked at Britishers at Battle of Trafalgar. Britishers being confident of their extremely powerful navy stand against Napoleon and defeated him miserably. Napoleon's overconfidence took him down in the world and displayed world about the power of confidence and fearlessness. Napoleon's negative confidence and insecurity against British hegemony again stood up for implementing The continental System and shutdown British land from imports and exports and made him fought Battle of Leipzig against Russians. Russians were also confident of their military power and nature's blessing of winter, defeated Napoleon's insecurity of power. Proving that even Napoleon's louder steps tried to defeat the power back than, their confidence silently killed his idealism of power.

Confidence builds-up determination in one-self. Only confidence can make sure of achievements through proper strategy, moving in the right direction. Determination to the path paves way of righteousness for that thing, aim, quality or behaviour. Like, Count Cavour of Italy, the "Brain" of Italy's unification. Count Cavour was determined to unify Italy after World War I with his fellows Garibaldi and Giuseppe Cavour's strategic planning and confidence in his fellows made him achieve his target even after his death. This shows that, one's confidence in one-self and strategic moves can destroy opponents plan even when, the planner is dead, like unification of several Papal states was done after Cavour's death.

Certainty is another character of confidence which silently but gives a voter's effect to opponent. Opponent vibrates because of the silent treatment of confidence, even though he is powerful and has majority. One single act is sufficient to kill insecurity with silent treatment. For instance, during the teaching of Prophet (PBUH) this tribe fellow, who was against Hazrat Muhammad (SAW), came to him with a fist enclosed with stone. He asked Prophet (PBUH) to tell what is inside his fist so that he could believe, He, the prophet (PBUH) is right and wise. The stone, by the miracle of Allah recited "Kalma" the trees nearby spoke in favour of Prophet's (PBUH) wisdom. This confidence of creatures and miracle destroyed Abu-Jahal's insecurity in no time. Similarly, Prophet (PBUH)

Strategy in Battle of Badr's sudden unplanned attack by Quseish, turned to victory due to the confidence of Prophet (PBUH) on Allah.

Anxiety of powerful against powerless is another trait of insecurity. The seemed powerful is instead a powerless insecure and loss person in front of seemed powerless person. This powerful act of confidence in a powerless person best strikes the other. Bhutto, a strong headed person, was sent to jail and later assassinated by his fear, by Zia-ul-Haq, the great dictator. Zia being powerful military person was afraid of Bhutto's wisdom. Even though, the circumstances faced by Bhutto were harshed by his beloved general, still Bhatti never lose hope and confidence in oneself. He united all with his confidence but Zia's ~~rise~~ insecurity was loud and he ordered Bhatti's death. Remaining firm and strengthen oneself with confidence marks history of aspirations. Zia's fear of insecurity also forced him to take several steps to calm down his anger and boost confidence but all was in vein despite his strenuous activities, showing confidence is inborn rather gain by negative means.

The changing global politics in 21st century is also changing confidence in contemporary politics. The once confident United States of America, the hegemon, is now losing its confidence converting it to insecurity against China, the growing power. China's confidence is raising swiftly to become world power. China's dedollarization efforts in BRICS and development of CIPS in competition of SWIFT - US Banking model of global transactions - is creating power loom. USA, is being insecure of China, is trying to escape from the Thucydides Trap. US efforts to demolarize China shows its insecurity over China's confidence. China's swift moves shows that China is confident and this confidence is burying USA underneath. This shows that confidence is key objective to prevail and insecurity only tries to swim without life jacket, shattering water everywhere in loudly but has no worth.

In the contemporary world, the winner is only the one who has confidence. Confidence to build one-self from scratch, to stand empire on fertile land, power to change myth into reality and achieve which others see unachievable. All this is possible and can be unlocked with the key of confidence. One such case is of Elon Musk. Elon Musk's confidence ^{Knowledge of} in artificial intelligence, robotics, algorithms, space technology and Cobots has paved way of excellence and entered in competition perceiving no-competitors. Although, Meta and Gemini - AI chatbot, are developed in competition with Elon's development but Elon's confidence is at another level. This is the reason that despite generating chatbots in insecurity of Elon's projects, these bots are facing criticism for in-humane responses to ~~concur~~ users. Elon's confidence showed achievement without error for the time being whereas other companies are giving explanations of their insecurity. Proving that confidence can lead you to right path silently but violent act of insecurities will never.

Another way of being confident is explained very accurately by Kashmiris. How have they shown confidence in such a constricted atmosphere? The answer lies in the fact that India has always been trying to suppress the Kashmiris because of the fear that if they removed restriction, Kashmiris will stand-up with Pakistan. This insecurity of India keep them active in Kashmiris, disrupting their protests, abusing their females and children and killing innocents. Despite these acts the confidence of Kashmiris are growing stronger, day after day. India's effort to oppress the Kashmiris by redeveloping the Article 370 and article 35(A) of their constitution, ~~has~~^{are} also under several repercussions. Despite these insecurities, and ^{western} world support to India, Kashmiris are resilient and firm within their confidence and power of it. This can also be seen ~~as~~ from the India's point of view. India is also confident of the fact that Kashmiris will unite with Pakistan if left untreated.

That's why their insecurity is making them do all evil loudly.

Confidence of self-dignity also speaks louder than words. People often get insecure with other and speak about out of insecurity, which returns^{to} them in a more louder way. They are so insecure of others that often take steps to harm them, which it takes U-turns and ^{cause} get harmed. In a podcast of a director, while asking a certain question, the director got obsessed with the actress "Reema" and passed unethical remarks. Later Reema indirectly reminded him of the Allah's Justice which proved later in the director's humiliation from other film industry stars. This act of insecurity and the confidence of Reema's innocence proved the director guilty. Confidence is always silent treatment of others uneasiness which is always louder. In Bollywood industry, two great stars were killed at their comparatively young age due to their fame over others. Although the cases are under trial, but media poor portrayal that both were killed by other film actors' insecurities.

Their insecurities could never be justified, as ~~is~~ showing that ~~insecure~~ insecurities are always loud, ~~low~~ and harsh.

Confidence of women is also destroyed by Patriarchal insecurities. But Feminists never loses hope and confidence in oneself.
This confidence of feminists paved way for many coloured human beings in the race of livelihood and life. The confidence of feminists transferred from one to another standing against patriarchal insecurities. Men never wanted to pave way for women because they are insecure of $ women's sympathy, empathy and leadership qualities which they ~~lack~~ lack either one or two.
They know and believes if women entered in their circle, they will make them lose, Oprah Winfrey ^{and} Priyanka Chopra - an Indian actress, now a Hollywood star - are some examples of colored women. Both showed confidence in oneself and fought against the odds to reach at the point they are. Another example, which was assured by Ex-British Intelligence officer, Innie Machon, that Lady Diana was a supporter of Palestine and soon she was to stand up for them. Her confidence despite Royal insecurities became the reason of her death. Her confidence was known could not be destroyed and suppressed. So, the insecurities won with her deliberate killing.

Bringing up everything to the end, shows that confidence is always silent meaning its inner voice against cruelty and oppression whereas insecurities are louder which means efforts to oppress. Confidence can build empires but insecurities destroys everything either political, social, ~~ecolone~~ economical, physiologically psychological, phylosophical, spiritual, religious or environmental. Insecurities has no boundaries and it phagocytose everything that comes in its way, making sounds feelable and heardable. Confidence can be felt within and proved with achievements outside, whereas insecurities destroys within and outside everything. Proving that confidence is a pile of cards baid with patience, resilience and perseverance but destroyed by the sound of ^{air} waves within seconds.
