TOPIC:- True essence of Sportsmanship

Sportsmanship is a spirit that every individual participating in a game or sports upholds in case of winning or losing. It is a phenomenon in which players treat their fellow players with respect and fairness. It is the demeanor of a person towards his opponents in a game. This spirit is equipped with various feelings of willingness to win, courage, not giving up, equity and fairness. Violating any of these debalances the true spirits of Sportsmanship. Poor Sportsmanship can be showed shown by both a winner and a loser. A sore loser who blames others for his loss and a bad winner who is too egoistic and disrespects his opponents. Not giving the due respect is a classic example of poor acts of sportsmanship that is demoralizing. In majority of the elite sports, sportsmen are the role models but in today too much emphasis is placed on competitiveness and winning that it has destabilized the true spirits of sportsmanship.
