The artful verbosity of Politicians

Politicians possess the extraordinary talent to fabricate their verbal claim. These claims prevent them from inquires against scandals etc. The perfection of such words help them to make promises ~~and~~ attract people for election. As soon as elections are held, these promises are forgotten. They can even shed tears and build scenarios to attract public sympathy. For self preservation in changing climate of politics, ideologies are also changed by them. Hence, the leadership is more about performance refinement rather than public services.

Q) Comprehension Passage

Question 1

Renewable energy systems are considered as an environmental friendly as compared to the usage of traditional fossil fuels. However, renewable energy system is a source intensive process as the manufacturing of solar panels and wind turbines involve the excavation of chemicals such as cadmium, tellurium, steel and other rare earth magnets which leads to the release generation of greenhouse gases which significantly contribute to the ~~over~~pollution. exploitation of finite resource and disruption of ecosystems where as fossil fuels contribute to direct emission of sulphuric and nitrous oxides in environment.

Q2)

Ans:

Electric Vehicles (EVs) are claimed to be environmentally friendly as it does not cause the release of direct gases emission in environment. However, it also contributes significantly to cause pollution because its manufacturing involves the usage of batteries. These batteries are composed of lithium ions, cobalt, and Nickel. The mining process of such chemicals occurs at the expense of habitat loss, soil contamination, high water usage. Another important factor is these batteries are get charged, its charging requires energy which ultimately comes from fossil fuels. Therefore, Electrical vehicles are not completely environmentally friendly, they are advantageous to some extent.

Q3)

Ans)

The challenge is associated with the disposal of renewable energy is their disposal like as these manufacturing involves the usage of various chemicals. The lifespan of solar panels and wind turbines is limited, typically ranging from 20 to 30 years. When their lives ends, they require proper and effective management of their disposal as these chemical possessed by them play a key role in accumulation of toxic waste. If the management of their disposal is not <sup>green</sup> focused it would lead to unfulfilled <sup>promise</sup> ~~and~~ reducing pollution.

Q4) Ans:

The given article suggest that the renewable energy is not entirely pollution free during its operational phases because solar panels, wind turbines, EVs, these all requires batteries for their functioning and these batteries depend heavily on lithium, cobalt and other chemicals.

The mining process occurs at the expense of abusing natural rights such as habitat loss, deforestation and soil contamination which eventually leads to environmental degradation.

Q5)

Ans:

The article proposes the balance perspective to address the limitations of renewable energy because neither the renewable energy source can be blindly relied upon nor their limitation can be ignored. No doubt, renewable energy source play an crucial role in mitigating the adverse impacts of environmental pollution. The balance approach could be adopted by reducing consumption and diversifying the energy mix by effective management by acknowledged after acknowledging its limitations.
