

Q No 2: - Precis.

Title: Politicians are epitome of selfishness

Politicians are nothing but self-centred people. Whenever politicians are questioned they use intricate vocabulary to avoid telling truth and to hide their motives leaving enquirer with word salad only. Politicians make promises as much as they can before election but forget all promises after election. People are amused by their acting bits as politicians portray emotions better than actors and do photo-op better than models for their own advantage. Politicians do whatever it takes to save themselves even abandoning their ideologies. Political leaders benefit themselves without doing anything for public.
