Q.7

Translation:

Few students, preparing for competitive exams, think that they will be the topper by only ~~staring~~ ^{gazing} on cover of book or putting notes below the pillow in the night. These are the people who find sources in prayers after preparing for two days.

The fact is that neither anyone has stick of magic nor there is shortcut for success. If they want unexpected results * unexpected hardwork is also needed. So, next time if you are thinking whether to study or not, by holding a cup of tea, remember that success achieved through hardwork, not fun.

Q.03

1. What can be inferred about the environmental impact of renewable energy production compared to traditional fossil fuels?

The production of renewable energy systems is a resource-intensive process that leaves a sizable environmental footprint. While traditional fossil fuels require rare earth elements whose extraction involves environmentally damaging mining practices.

They not only generates significant greenhouse gas emissions but also disrupts ecosystems and exploits finite resources.

2. How far the electric vehicles (EVs) are environmental friendly?

Electric vehicles have potential to reduce pollution but their current lifecycle emissions suggest that they are not a complete solution to reduce the pollution.

Additionally, if electricity used to charge EVs comes from fossil fuels, their environmental benefits diminish significantly.

3. What challenge is associated with the disposal of renewable energy systems after their lifespan ends?

The disposal of renewable energy systems

after their lifespan ends, leaves a sizable environmental footprint.

4. Why does the article suggest that renewable energy is not entirely pollution-free during its operational phase?

The renewable energy does not entirely pollution-free during its operational phase because it is a resource-intensive process that leaves a sizable environmental footprint.

5. How does the article propose addressing the limitations of renewable energy?

According to the article, renewable energy is not the silver bullet for saving the planet. It is a complex, imperfect solution that requires careful management and realistic expectations. Only by acknowledging its limitations, one can hope to harness its potential responsibly.

Q.2: Precis

Title : Politicians: less serving the populace and more
perfecting the performance

Precis:

Politicians become the masters of linguistic acrobatics
near the days of elections.

They made profound commitments
to the sawed art of promises.

Their promises are like autumn leaves which scattered generously before elections. Their crocodilian tears at public forums and rehearsed displays of indignation, never fail to keep their audience entertained. It is said that the pen is mightier than the sword,

but in politicians' hands,

a well-timed photo-op with a baby or a stray dog

wields greater power than either.

Alas, the politicians class is less serving the public but more perfecting the performance. (95 words)
