Q#1 PrecisTitle: Sportsmanship

Sportsmanship involves principles such as fairness, self-control, courage and persistence. It has also been associated with one's approach to a sport or players. Sportsmanship is said to have four essential elements like being good form, the will to win, equity and fairness. A striking balance among all four is necessary for demonstrating sportsmanship. If a ~~athletes~~ person puts too much stress on winning, ignoring equity and fairness in the game, the very idea of sportsmanship dies. In today's sporting culture, great importance is associated with competition and winning, ignoring the other aspects of sportsmanship. People who blame others or do not accept responsibility of their defeat are called sore losers. While on the other hand, people who act in an improper fashion after the victory such as lowering the self-esteem of an opponent or not respecting other teams, are rejected to as bad winners, and exhibiting poor sportsmanship.
